The British Journal of General Practice

Editorials

131 Frequent attenders: Who needs treatment? R Neal, A Dowell, P Heywood and S Morley

132 Summative assessment — threat or opportunity? J Hayden

135 Content of a trainer’s report for summative assessment in general practice: views of trainers N Johnson, J Hasler, J Toby and J Grant

Original papers

140 Consensus minimum standards for use in a trainer’s report for summative assessment in general practice N Johnson, J Hasler, J Toby and J Grant

145 Which smokers are helped to give up smoking using transdermal nicotine patches? Results from a randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial PL Yudkin, L Jones, T Lancaster and GH Fowler

149 Characteristics of drug misusers and their perceptions of general practitioner care C Hindler, M King, J Nazareth, J Cohen, R Farmer and C Gerada

153 Patients’ views of low back pain and its management in general practice AM Skelton, EA Murphy, RIL Murphy and TC O'Dowd

157 Stress among general practitioners and their spouses: a qualitative study U Rout

161 Incidence and causes of rectal bleeding in general practice as detected by colonoscopy JV Metcalf, J Smith, R Jones and CO Record

165 Comparison between primary care physiotherapy education/advice clinics and traditional hospital-based physiotherapy treatment: a randomized trial C Worsfold, J Langridge, A Spalding and MA Mullee

169 Do self-management plans reduce morbidity in patients with asthma? GHoskins, RG Neville, B Smith and RA Clark

173 Effects of immediate modified feeding on infantile gastroenteritis MAR Hoghton, NK Mittal, BK Sandhu and G Mahdi

177 The role of screening for Helicobacter pylori in patients with duodenal ulceration in the primary health care setting H Rosengren and R J Polson

181 Completeness and accuracy of morbidity and repeat prescribing records held on general practice computers in Scotland F G Whitelaw, S L Nevin, R M Milne, R J Taylor, M W Taylor and A J Watt

187 The importance of diet and physical activity in the treatment of conditions managed in general practice P Little and B Margetts

193 Diagnosis of asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in general practice CP van Schayck and the Primary and Secondary Care Respiratory Specialists Working Group

Letters

202 Book and video review

204 Classified advertisements

RCGP Connection pull-out magazine included for members

ISSN 0960-1643