

The British Journal of General Practice

Editorials

- 354 Preventive care of elderly people: how good is our training?
A J Tulloch
- 355 Medical practice and the double-blind, randomized controlled trial
Bruce G Charlton

Original papers

- 357 Link between the ability to detect and manage emotional disorders: a study of general practitioner trainees
T Millar and D P Goldberg
- 360 Experience of using rating scales for the assessment of vocational trainees in general practice F Difford and R C W Hughes
- 365 Discriminating ability of the erythrocyte sedimentation rate: a prospective study in general practice
G J Dinant, J A Knottnerus and J W J Van Wersch
- 371 Mothers' concepts of normality, behavioural change and illness in their children Sandy Irvine and Sarah Cunningham-Burley
- 375 Incidence of toxoplasmosis in patients with glandular fever and in healthy blood donors J D Johnson and R E Holliman
- 377 Does nose blowing improve hearing in serous otitis? A community study Mary Heaf, Sheila Hutchings and Kathryn Bunch
- 380 The General Practice Research Club Roger Jones, John Wilmot and John Fry

Review article

- 382 Screening elderly people: a review of the literature in the light of the new general practitioner contract Elizabeth R Perkins

386 Letters

393 Book and video review

394 Classified advertisements

