

Artificial feeding in early infancy. Second Edition. A. BOGDAN, M.D., M.R.C.P.E., D.C.H. Tutorial System Publications—Paediatric Series. Available through all bookshops in the United Kingdom. 1964. Pp. v+32. Price 5s.

This is the second edition of this book, the first having been published in 1961. The text has been revised throughout and two new sections added on principles of spoon feeding and feeding problems.

The author deals with the basic, elementary facts concerning the artificial feeding of a healthy infant up until the age of about three months; the feeding of an ill baby is not considered at all. The text is set out in note form, and like the other books in this series the right-hand page is left blank for the addition of personal notes. It is short with only 32 printed pages, no diagrams or pictures and few tables. The subject matter is well presented, with many sub-headings so that it is easy to get at any detail required, and no index is given.
