

The Journal of The Royal College of General Practitioners

Volume 27

Number 180

July 1977

Editorial

Advertising reform

Generalists and specialists

Physicians and family doctors: a new relationship

Preventive medicine

Coronary risk factor reduction through biofeedback-aided relaxation and meditation

General-practitioner obstetrics

An analysis of 3,199 patients booked for delivery in general-practitioner obstetric units

Patients transferred in labour from general-practitioner maternity units

Depression

The severity of depression in patients treated in general practice

Depression in rheumatoid arthritis

Child care

Pre-school development screening in a health centre — the problem of non-attendance

The patient's point of view

Consumers, family physicians, allied health workers, and sociomedical problems

Medicine in the EEC

Prolonged study leave in Hamburg and Vienna