RAISED BLOOD PRESSURE AND PSORIASIS

Sir,

I read with interest the clinical study in general practice reported by Dr Preece (December Journal, p. 713) in which there appeared to be an association between psoriasis and hypertension in male patients.

When such associations are demonstrated it is important to consider the possible causes. One that immediately springs to mind is therapy. This can work in both directions. For instance, psoriasiform lesions have been described with nearly all the commonly used beta-adrenergic receptor blockers, which are most often given in the management of hypertension. These lesions are histologically unlike true psoriasis but the superficial appearances are similar.

On the other hand, psoriasis is often treated with liberal applications of a variety of corticosteroid creams and ointments. The danger here is the absorption of systemically significant amounts of corticosteroids which can increase salt and water retention and perhaps lead to a higher incidence of hypertension.

It would be interesting to know whether Dr Preece has any data which might throw light on these possibilities.

THE PILL

Sir,

The Jubilee editorial (November Journal, p.644) comments on a recent paper from the Manchester Research Unit (1977) which describes the increased risks run by contraceptive pill-takers over the age of 35. While fully accepting the need to modify my advice to patients, I wonder if colleagues might be surprised, as I was, at the numbers likely to be affected by this change of policy.

Last July a 1:10 random sample of married women in my practice, between 37 and 51 years, was drawn and a postal questionnaire sent out. Ninety-four out of 97 women replied and of these ten (10.6 per cent) were currently taking an oral contraceptive. Thus, in a practice of 9,000 patients, probably 100 women between 37 years and the menopause were still on the Pill, and 30 of these were also smokers.

Though I practise in a new town, the percentage of women in this age group is very similar to that for Scotland as a whole.

The RCGP Report was also widely publicized in the daily press and in this practice we have noted a marked increase in requests and referrals for sterilization and a modest revival of the dutch cap. For the whole sample the mean age at delivery of last child was 31.0 years and a substantial number of women have continued an increasingly
