

The Journal of The Royal College of General Practitioners

Volume 31

Number 228

July 1981

Editorials

A survey of primary care in London
General practitioners and National Health Service planning
The rehabilitation of stroke patients

Medical education

Continuing education — identifying our needs

History of medicine

Sir James Mackenzie and atrial fibrillation — a new perspective

Research methods

The accuracy of age-sex registers, practice medical records and family practitioner committee registers

The consultation

Expectations and experience of people who consult in a training practice

Interrogation and interview: strategies for obtaining clinical data

Adverse drug reactions

The prevention of adverse drug reactions — a potential role for pharmacists in the primary care team?

Why not?

Why not monitor our patients for adverse effects of drugs?

Published by Update Publications Ltd

ISSN 0035-8797