

The Journal of The Royal College of General Practitioners

Volume 34

Number 269

December 1984

Editorials

General practice united on preventive child care

Information for patients

Computers in general practice

Clinical knowledge and education for general practice

Original papers

Consultation use of a computer by general practitioners

Writing all prescriptions by computer

Reducing prescribing costs through computer controlled repeat prescribing

The computer health check — the first 100 patients

Letters

News and reports

Review article

Towards a rationalization of counselling in general practice

Short report

Lymphangitis and scarlet fever after finger injury from a computer game

Primary care bookshelf

Classified advertisements and notices