

The Journal of The Royal College of General Practitioners

Volume 36

Number 286

May 1986

Editorials

Academic general practice — present state and future trends

The problems of audit and research

Joking relationships

Original papers

An interactive computerized protocol for the management of hypertension: effects on the general practitioner's clinical behaviour

An audit of the management of patients with epilepsy in thirty general practices

Psychological treatment in general practice: its effect on patients and their families

A comparison of the practice activities of trainees and principals

Family practitioner committee records — a neglected resource. 3. Three inner city areas compared

Case reports

Parvovirus infection in a family with wheeze in an adult

General practitioner prescribing of total parenteral nutrition at home

Letters

News and reports

Primary care bookshelf

Classified advertisements and notices