

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF GENERAL PRACTITIONERS
SCOTTISH OFFICE

The Journal of The Royal College of General Practitioners

Volume 36

Number 292

November 1986

Editorials

The age of the computer?

Regional patterns of AIDS and HIV infection

Children and divorce

Course organizers in general practice

Original papers

Smoking in pregnancy: is the message getting through?

A survey of paramenstrual complaints by covert and by overt methods

An investigation into private sector nursing and residential home care for the elderly in north Wales

Patients' opinions on the services provided by a general practice: a community health council survey

Feasibility and usefulness of family record cards in general practice

Variation in peak expiratory flow in children with asthma

Improved health care delivery in an inner-city well-baby clinic run by general practitioners

Medical aspects of drug misuse during one year in a rehabilitation unit

Review article

Ways of influencing the behaviour of general practitioners

Letters

Primary care bookshelf

News

Classified advertisements and notices

ISSN 0035-8797